Chas. Berry, S. P. agent at Campbell is enjoying his annual vacation. Accompanied by Mrs. Berry, he left Tuesday for Los Angeles, and from there will visit various points in the state during his two weeks' absence.

The young people and the choir of the Congregational church will have a Hallow-e'en evening at the parsonage tonight. They are planning the usual stunts that form the entertainment at these events and will undoubtedly have a good time.

Mrs. Clara Springer of Shelby, Mich., who has been attending the national convention of the W. C. T. U. at Portland arrived Monday to spend a day with her friends, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Inman. Mrs. Springer went to Los Angeles Tuesday.

Jas. Kelley has been rearranging the interior of his meat market and adding to his display facilities. He has greatly increased his stock of vegetables and fruit, and also put in a large supply of pail lard, canned meats and other things usually handled by a well equipped market.

Ed. Genasci returned Saturday from a two months' journey about the state. He visited at Stockton and other cities in the San Joaquin valley, driving across the Antelope plains to the oil fields at Lost Hills and back to the coast to Cayucos his birth place. On his way home he spent several days at Salinas.

Under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. a union mass meeting will be held Sunday at the M. E. Church. Franklin Hichborn of Santa Clara will address the meeting on the race-track gambling initiative. Every voter should be present to become thoroughly informed concerning this nuisance. Special music by the choir.

Mr. and Mrs. B. K. Denbigh and children arrived Saturday from Berkeley for a week's visit with Mrs. Denbigh's mother, Mrs. Sadler. Mr. Denbigh, bringing his valued collie on a late train, was compelled to walk out from San Jose to the S. G. Nelson farm, a distance of eight miles because, the interurban line would not carry his dog.

The Colwell house occupied by Mr. Scourci was destroyed by fire last evening between 7 and 8 o'clock. Mr. Scourci had stored about 25 tons of prunes in the building which were also burned uninsured. The water tank which was empty was burned. None of the household goods were saved. The fire was caused by a defective chimney.

Last Saturday evening at the Epworth League Rally in San Jose the County League was reorganized with Dr. T. K. Kerr, acting president, Miss Ernestine Kennedy, of Campbell, secretary and Chas. Brown, treasurer. Each local organization will have one delegate on the central committee which will meet to decide on the next meeting of the League. Campbell was represented by the 19 young people who enjoyed the "spread" that was served.

Mr. and Mrs John L. Hagelin, and daughter, Miss Anna arrived Saturday from their visit in Sweden. They have been away nearly a year and altho they enjoyed a very pleasant reunion with relatives and friends are glad to return to this milder climate. Mr. Hagelin kept in touch with Campbell thru the columns of the Press and as he waded thru mountain snow, enjoyed reading about his fellow townsmen purchasing automobiles and enjoying overland trips.

The Progressive Rally at Campbell, Tuesday evening was well attended. The hall had been appropriately decorated by Mrs. Ringe. Committeeman Ringe presided. Mrs. Watson gave a very interesting talk on the issues as she saw them. Attorney Free gave a short speech on the reasons why Mr. Hayes should be returned to Congress. L. D. Bohnett and Frank Benson each gave short addresses on the advisability of supporting the Progressive party. Several campaign songs were sung by the High School Glee Club, under the direction of Mrs. John J. Jury of San Jose, and Mrs. John J. Jury of San Jose, and T. T. Mitchell sang a solo. Miss Beth Kennedy presided at the piano. This meeting which was the wind-up of the Bull Moose campaign was an enthusiastic one and speaks well for the management of Col. Ringe.

High School Notes

A straw vote in the Freshman Class at the High School yesterday resulted as follows; Roosevelt 26, Wilson 5, Debs 1, Taft 1.

The second of the interclass debates occurred Tuesday at the high school, Frank Mendel and Wm. Ludwig, Freshmen, upheld the negative, and Elon Gerken and Russell Metzler, the affirmative, the decision going to the negative. The question debated was "Resolved that the furnishing of free textbooks is inadvisable."

Mr. E. N. Lafonso, the young Indian singer who so pleasingly entertained a large audience at the Congregational church Sunday evening with several pretty solos, gave a couple of numbers for the High School Monday morning.

Wednesday afternoon the C. U. H. S. Basket Ball team played the Los Gatos H. S. team at the latter place. The score for the first half was 10 to 8 in favor of Los Gatos, but the final score was 19 to 16 in favor of Campbell.

Prof. Cramer of the H. S. faculty accompanied the team which was made up of the following members of the school: Freyschlag, R. F. C. Scholz—L. G.—1st. ½. Righter, L. F. Vollman, L. G. 2nd. ½. R. Kennedy—C. Stepka—R. G. Dawley—sub.

This afternoon the Los Gatos H. S. tennis teams are playing the Campbell High School on the local courts.

The Orchard City Drug Co.

Thos. Price has arrived here and is putting his new drug store into readiness in the B. O. Curry Building. The fixtures are in oak with the latest devices for convenience. A complete and up-to-the-minute line of drugs, stationery and sundries will be carried, and prescriptions will be filled while you wait.

Mr. Price is a thoroughly progressive pharmacist and believes in a growing future for Campbell and has made his preparations with that idea in view and is deserving of a liberal patronage for his enterprise. The new firm will be known as the "Orchard City Drug Co."

A Wilson Rally

A Woodrow Wilson Day Meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Hall in Campbell on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

The great message of Gov. Wilson will be read by the chairman and should be heard by every person who has any regard for the morrow.

Hon. P. O. Day of San Francisco who is a personal friend and classmate of Senator LaFollette, together with Dr. Dinsmore of San Jose will speak.

The committee on arrangements, E. G. Lanz, Judge Farley and Mrs. M. W. Wilson, report the following for chairman and vice-presidents of the meeting: L. Woodard, Chairman; Messrs. and Mesdames Miracle, Sturtevant, Whitney, Farley, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Woodard, Dr. Cooper and Mr. Lanz, vice-presidents. A big bonfire and special music will be a part of the attractions.

Hallow-e'en Party

At the haunted house No. 185 Campbell Avenue, a delightful Hallowe'en party was held. All the guests came disguised and were lead down into the basement, which had been beautifully decorated in true Hallowe'en fashion for the occasion. The procession of ghost like figures was lead by the witch, Miss Emma Swope.

After having their amusing fortunes told, and doing various Hallowe'en stunts, they were told to unmasque. Much amusement was caused over the various costumes, some of which were; witches, ghosts, devil, Priscilla, Sis. Hopkins, Cats, Signorita and Signore, fancy dominoes, Chrysanthemum, and fancy dresses.

Delicious refreshments were served which consisted of individual pumpkin pies, fruit punch, candy, apples and nuts.

At a late hour, the guests departed, declaring that they had spent a most enjoyable evening, and that their hostess, Mary Rodeck was a royal entertainer.

Those bidden were the Misses Bernice Lloyd, Vaudine Putnam, Margaret Hinchliffe, Geneva Currier, Ruth Hayes, Amy Farley, Essie Stoller, Juliette Billiou, Mary Phelps, Abbie Gilbert, Florence Brown, Mary Rodeck, Miss Swope, Messrs. Kobert Kennedy, Sibley Dawley, Wilbur Mitchell, William Ludwig, Life Price, Delbert Campbell, Ben Rodeck, Dan Yeager, Chas. Assemblyman Bohnett

As the campaign closes it is evident that the election of L. D. Bohnett by the voters of the 44th assembly district is certain. He has made an active campaign, and as his record during two terms of office has been clean and praiseworthy in the highest degree, the voters of the district are well satisfied to return him to his seat in the Assembly. They are especially pleased over the fact that Mr. Bohnett has attained such prestige and influence in the Assembly that he will have strong support for the Speakership and many who are familiar with the situation predict that he will be the next Speaker of the Assembly.

During the session of 1909 Mr. Bohnett was one of the leaders of the minority that fought the organization then in full control of the political machinery of the state. During the session of 1911 he retained his position of leadership among the progressive members, who were now in a majority, and had a very prominent part in enacting into law the progressive measures which have made the last session of the California legislature famous throughout the nation.

Mr. Bohnett has announced his intention of introducing at the next session of the legislature, if re-elected, the necessary measures to give married women equal rights with their husbands in community property.

Among other measures Mr. Bohnett expects to introduce at the next session will be a bill to prevent the sale of worthless stocks in the state, taking as his model the famous "blue sky law" of Kansas. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been saved to the people of Kansas by this law and the same will be true in California.

Mr. Bohnett was born in Santa Clara County and has lived here all his life. He is a graduate of the Campbell Union High School and was graduated from the University of California in 1906 with high honors. Early in 1908 he opened law offices in San Jose and since that time has been actively engaged in the practice of his profession.

Congregational Church

We have had "Mother's Day;" "Old Folks Day;" "Children's Day;" Special services for the Boys and Girls, but no church yet has remembered the "Fathers in this way. Our church is willing to be the pioneer in this, and you are most cordially invited to attend our First Annual Father's Day Service next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Remembering all that "Father" has done for us in the past, all that he means to us, let us all unite in a service in his honor. This is not a service where Fathers only are invited, but the entire family. Father, Mother, Children and friends, let us come, and sitting together as families let us honor him who gave us his name.

No service, beside Endeavor, in the evening. Union meeting at M. E. Church.

MAKE SERVICEABLE FISH ROD

By Using Four Pieces of Hickory and Following Directions Good Pole May be Made.

Here is the way to make a good serviceable fish pole, says the American Boy. Get four pieces of hickory or any hard wood and trim them nicely to even length, say two feet. Each of the sections is now given a uniform taper, with jack knife and sandpaper. The diagram, fig. 6, shows the proper scale to follow in shaving off the wood. In its eight feet of length the pole tapers from one inch in diameter to one-eighth inch. The figures in the diagram represent the amount you would cut off provided the pole measured feet instead of inches. The joints are fastened together in quite a new way. Cut them to a sharp point. Now dip them in thin glue, press firmly together and wrap outside of both with heavy cord. Any good grade of fish line will do, silk preferred. Figs. 2 and 3 explain this outside wrapping. The guides for the line to run through are shown in Figs. 4 and 5. Fig. 5 is the end of the pole. It is a wire loop lashed tightly to the pole. Fig. 4 is a piece of wire put in at each joint and held there by the same wrapping that holds the joints together. The outside of the pole should be smoothed with fine sandpaper and then rubbed with oil. Though the cost of the pole is next to nothing, you will find it tough and reliable.

SEVERE ON GIRLS IN PERSIA

From Hour of Birth Social Inequality Between Sexes Asserts Itself—Celibacy a Disgrace.

The birth of a girl in Persia is received with pity, even by her mother. "Why should I not weep over my little girl, who will have to endure the same miseries as I have known?" she cries. "She is of so little value! Who knows whether her father will not one day throw her out of the window and so silence forever her wailing? And why should he be annoyed? He knows he may do such a thing with impunity. No one cares any more than if it was a cat which had to suffer for his wrath."

From the hour of birth the social inequality between the sexes asserts itself. Infant mortality is very high, owing to the ignorance and inexperience of the women. Since celibacy is considered a disgrace, girls are often married as young as ten or twelve. In order to reduce the rate of infant mortality some men have suggested that the mother should have a finger cut off every time she lost a child. This cruelty, however, has not been adopted. But that it should have entered into the minds of any Persian men is significant enough.—Je Sais Tout.

Health & Beauty Hints

By Katherine Morton

When a girl comes to the love of cosmetics, those supreme luxuries of womankind, she may be called grown up. Her delight in delicate powders, fragrant perfumes, creams, toilet waters, fine soaps and scented baths divides her forevermore from the careless habits of childhood. Henceforth the prettiness of her skin and the glossy softness of her hair are sacred trusts, and all she asks is that she may be able to replenish her little store of beauty materials every now and then. This is a normal and perfectly legitimate state of things, and therefore it behooves parents to supply young daughters who have no money of their own, with the simple mediums required for beautifying the complexion and hair.

Good Powders.

In the matter of powder, good taste demands something very simple for the schoolgirl, a pure white powder, such as talcum or rice or wheat starch, very lightly perfumed. The talcums for nursery use, prepared as they are for the tender bodies of babyhood, are the best of these powders, but girls should keep their powder boxes and puffs free of dust, for the soil that gets it will help to encourage blackheads. However simple the powder is, too, it should be taken off at night with a cleansing face bath, for, if left on the face, it is bound to stop up the pores. A French nursery powder of indescribable fineness is often used by women as well as young girls, this being almost impalpable when put on, and possessing the fragrance of lilies-of-the-valley. This elusiveness of scent should be a feature of all beauty materials used by young girls, for strong odors do not seem to go well with the modesty and freshness of girlhood.

Face Bath Needed.

But far more enhancing than the powder is the cleansing face bath, which is required to free the skin of old cuticle, stale oil, dust and perspiration. So when you come to take a face bath remember all the wastes you must get rid of, and don't make a pretense of things with little dabs of cold water and an indifferently clean face cloth. Hot water and a bland soap must be used, several rinsings must be done with plain water, and in the event of any eruptive condition wash rags and towels should be kept apart from those used by the rest of the family, and be washed by themselves and sterilized. That apparently innocent thing, the wash rag, by the way, is responsible for many a bad state of things with the skin. It is only safe to use it once, and if examined by a strong microscope when very dirty the reason for this will be discovered. Wash rags should always be hung in the sun after using, as the shady corner of the bathroom is the very place for the developing of the germs that infest them, and sun is death to germs. Never use a sponge for a bath of any kind, as the sponge holds the body soil and so can never be cleansed properly. A sour bit of bathroom linen of any sort is an abomination and very injurious to the beauty of the skin, conveying to it sometimes a little fungus growth caught from the invisible mold on the rag or towel. Ringworms may be propagated in this way, and if the offensive linen is used by other members of the family this really dreadful skin affliction may spread through the whole household.

In many a bathroom not yet educated up to the elegancies of the toilet common laundry soaps are put for toilet purposes, and these the girl of the family often uses on her face and hair, entirely ignorant of the fact that she is doing her looks incredible harm. Such soaps are strong with alkali, and if they do not bite the skin to the point of torment they yellow and roughen it. When washed with them, the hair is robbed of every drop of natural oil, made brittle and colorless, to say nothing of the great difficulty of getting the strong adhesive suds out of the locks and from the scalp, where the hard soap seems to love especially to cling.

Soap for Toilet.

Fine toilet soaps and shampoos are dear, of course, but a liquid soap can be made of a twenty-five cent cake of castile which would be just as delicate for washing the face and hair as the finest soap on the market. Shave the soap to a powder, and then boil this in a pint of soft water; keep the resulting jelly in a wide-mouthed bottle, working the jelly into the skin when using, but only making a thick suds for the hair. If the hair is very oily and soiled, add a tiny pinch of bicarbonate of soda to the suds. As a tonic and feeding substance for scanty hair raw eggs are unrivaled, as I have said many times ,these supplying the iron and sulphur the anemic scalp needs. For dandruff or any scalp or skin eruption use green soap, which is the purest made and highly antiseptic.

WHEN HE MARRIES

Sense as Well as Sentiment Necessary.

By JEAN O. LOIZEAUX.

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Rivers scowled, tousled his blonde hair, and slammed shut the law book before him. But Jefferson went straight ahead with his panegyric of Miss Rose Wentworth's charms. Finally Rivers grew tired of it.

"Confound you, Jeff! Stop raving and get to work on that probate case! If the practice of law absorbed you as girls do, in a year you'd be too famous to live with. Can't you get into your head that I am pursuing a profession and not a problematic wife? I hate fooling, and I can't be serious until I am professionally and financially established. I want to offer a woman something more than just my sweet self!"

Jefferson stared, astonished. John Rivers was a man of few words, and outwardly of small sentiment. But he had been roused. He went on.

"Let's finish this subject for good, Jeff. No, I will not beau Miss Nannie Wiley about just to give you a chance with her guest. In fact, I hope Miss Wentworth will turn you down cold. It would be your salvation. What courting is done by this firm should be for favor with judges and juries and clients. Success comes from digging, rather than by grace of an Irish temperament and a talent for banjo-playing. Sentiment's all right, but when a man marries, he needs sense also. A practical man chooses his wife, instead of letting himself be dragged to the altar by the first pretty thing that makes eyes at him."

"Quite a tirade, old man," commented Jeff bitterly. "You wait! Your time will come." Rivers was reopening his book.

"When it does I won't maunder to you about it. Going after those depositions?" Jeff departed.

Rivers so lost himself in study that five minutes later he did not hear a slim, dark-eyed girl enter until she spoke his name. She was delicate and refined-looking and—afraid. He sprang up.

"Mr. Rivers? You're a lawyer—may I talk with you?"

He bowed her before him into the private office and closed the door.

In a half hour he was ushering his graceful client into the outer hall as if she were a princess. Youth and beauty have their spell. For all the tragedy of her pale face and plain clothes she was like the spring. He gave her a last bit of advice as he opened the door.

"Look again for the papers and report soon. We'll do all we can. Perhaps the hope will keep your mother up a bit longer. Keep up your courage. Good morning."

Jeff, just entering, grinned maliciously.

"A bad business," said his partner, ignoring the grin. "She is a Miss Annie Morrow. John Morrow of Atta was her father. He died some months ago and left things in queer shape. His widow, the girl's mother, thought there was at least $20,000 for her in the State bank here. Though very close-mouthed, he had told her he was leaving her that sum. He was much older than his wife, and there was a son by a former marriage who has never recognized his stepmother and half-sister. The father had provided amply for him in cash."

Jeff was all professional interest. "No will?"

"The girl saw him make and sign one before witnesses which she can produce. But the will can't be found. And at the bank they found only about $1,500! The bank people told her Morrow had withdrawn the rest six months before his death. His bankbook showed this. He took the money in very large bills, and there is no trace of it. The son denies all knowledge of it, and has not changed his mode of living. Now the girl says that the funeral and her mother's illness have eaten up all but about fifty dollars and she has gone to clerking at Atkinson's, at $7 a week. Her education was ornamental, and she has neither time nor money for a business course. She has to spend her spare hours with her mother."

"I don't see how law can help," remarked Jeff shortly.

"No. But Miss Morrow wants me to hunt for a hope! Her mother can't at best live long, and would go peacefully if she was sure her girl would not be left penniless. I'll do what I can. Put a detective on the half-brother's trail. Meanwhile she says they ransacked every corner of the house they left for the will. They searched every paper and box for the bills or some account of them. The old man was queer and had no lawyer, but I am interested. Get those depositions?"

After some days the detectives reported the brother's status. Far from paying extra money, he was in debt and borrowing. Annie came in, said her mother was weaker, and that neither will nor money had been found. She wished Rivers himself to come out to the three rooms they had furnished and search for himself among the dead man's effects.

One evening he went out. After that his task became almost an obsession. In the desk and papers he found only evidences of great peculiarity and a seeming order. There was nothing that helped. The furniture was fine old walnut; the mother and daughter of fine breeding—genuine, like all their possessions. He devoted himself to sustaining the invalid with hope, assuring her that so much money could neither be lost or hidden, that it would be found to have been well invested somewhere, and that when located any judge or jury would give it to the widow and daughter. He left her almost happy, clinging to his hand and begging him to come again.

This was in May, when the grass was greening on the slopes and the outdoor world began to be gay. Rivers relented towards poor Jeff, the lovelorn, and made himself useful escorting Miss Wiley. Miss Wentworth smiled on Jeff. And as for Nannie Wiley, Rivers soon began telling himself that if a man wished to marry, she was the woman to choose. She had health, dignity, beauty, social position, even a small fortune. Rivers wanted to be in love with her. Finally he made himself think that he was in love with her. She frankly preferred him to an extent that discouraged other suitors. One day walking with her on the street they met Annie Morrow in her little blue gown and simple hat. Rivers lifted his hat with an unconscious homage which Nannie Wiley instantly observed.

"Who is that pale little thing? Rather pretty, though."

"Miss Morrow, a client of mine." His very thought protected her from another woman's comment. Rather pretty! Why, she was lovely! He had a moment's pained wonder why Annie, during all his visits to her mother, held herself so aloof. She would give him a cup of tea, join courteously in the conversation, but she was his client, nothing more. She worked silently, courageously. And he more and more devoted himself to the failing invalid.

One balmy evening late in May he was dressing to go out with Miss Wiley, Jeff and Rose Wentworth, when Annie 'phoned him. Her mother was failing rapidly and wished to see him. Instantly he called up Annie Wiley, telling her that important work for a client had just come in, that keeping his engagement was impossible, that he would come out in the morning to be forgiven for having to deny himself a pleasure. She excused him prettily enough, but laughed over the phone.

"It's quite all right. Is it your pretty girl client?" He simply answered that the matter could not be postponed. Then he took the first car to the Morrow's.

The doctor and neighbors were there, and Annie met him at the door, appealing to him to exaggerate, do something to make her mother think the money would be found. This he did manfully, promising to be the girl's guardian, and see that all went well with her.

The end came suddenly. Annie was dry-eyed and white, with no word for anyone. He helped her through the funeral, but that over she went back to her work, refusing help from him further. She was going to keep the rooms to the month's end.

After that Rivers worried about her, went frequently to see her, and was so preoccupied that Nannie Wiley professed herself not greatly amused by his society. What troubled him was that Annie held to her queer, cool, impersonal attitude to him, as though he were an enemy, and not her guardian. He could not, moreover, bear to have her clerking in a store, growing paler and thinner. Together they had again searched all her father's effects, and in vain as before.

One Saturday night, on an impulse, Rivers went out and found Annie packing desperately. Her cheeks were flushed feverishly, and her eyes big and bright. He demanded explanations, standing over her.

"I'm going back to Atta, where we used to live. I can't stand this life. I may be a coward. It may be wicked, but—I'm going." She could not finish, but he suddenly knew that she was telling him she was to be married. A wave of pain swept over him, and then he knew his heart.

"Do you love him?" he asked abruptly," taking her hands.

"I have known him all my life—you have no right—"

"I have. I love you. You shall not go unless you tell me truthfully that you do not love me! You must be wild to think of marrying anyone else! You do love me, don't you? don't you?" Still she drew away from him, but tears rolled down her cheeks helplessly. He had both her hands.

Therefore he dried the tears with his handkerchief, and when her eyes smiled at him, he held her close a moment and kissed her soft hair. Unconsciously he stepped back and knocked a pile of old books to the floor with a crash. A big dictionary fell open. He stooped to pick it up, and a crisp yellow bill fluttered from the leaves. Then he shook out others, and turned to take the girl again in his arms.

"See how I kept my promise to your mother? Do you see, Annie?" But she no longer cared for the money. She rested against him and cried herself out of grief into contentment.

Sound Dramatic Sense.

Among the stories told by Arnold Bennett during his American tour was one about a young actress.

"Two men, just before her debut, were discussing this young actress's future," Mr. Bennett said. "The first man remarked thoughtfully:

"'I believe her stage career will be extraordinary. She has a most remarkable dramatic sense.'

"'Yes?' said the other man. 'And how does this dramatic sense display itself?'

"'Well,' replied the other, 'it displays itself best, perhaps, in the series of dinners at $4 a plate that she has been giving week by week to all the dramatic critics and theatrical correspondents.'"

NEW COMMANDER OF SALVATION ARMY

Gen. Bramwell Booth, new commander of the Salvation Army, was deluged with expressions of good will at his elevation to the post left vacant by the death of his father.

The general acknowledged a few of them personally, but the vast majority will have to be answered by a circular letter as their number is so great that individual responses are impossible. Several of his advisers are urging upon the new commander to make a tour of inspection of the more important army posts, as one of the first necesities of his administration.

The new commander of the Salvation Army, Gen. Bramwell Booth, is a big man—physically and mentally. He stands over six feet high and is of military carriage. A British cabinet minister once said of him that he would be worth $50,000 a year to any of the great English administrative departments, and that he could have made millions in the business world.

He now follows his illustrious father in supreme command of the international Salvation Army, with more than 75,000 officers preaching and teaching, and rescuing the fallen in fifty-five countries.

NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK

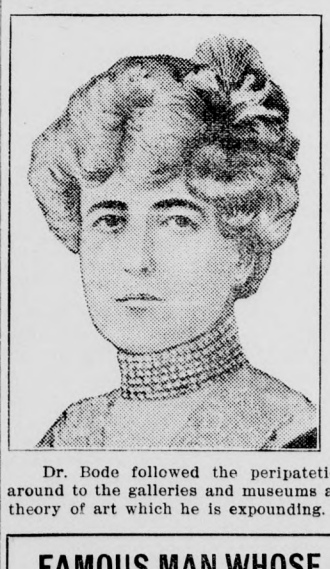
Oscar Solomon Straus, who has been nominated for governor of New York by the Progressives of that state, has the distinction of being the first Jew who ever became a member of the United States cabinet. In 1906 he was appointed secretary of commerce and labor by President Theodore Roosevelt.

Mr. Straus was born on December 23, 1850, and spent most of his boyhood in Georgia. At the age of ten he was placed under the care of a private tutor, and later was sent to Collingsworth institute. In 1865 Lazarus Straus, the father, suffered business reverses and was compelled to move to New York, taking the son with him.

Soon after the family had moved to New York Oscar Straus entered Columbia grammar school, where he remained for two years, going from there to Columbia college, from which institution he was graduated in 1871. Two years later he graduated from Columbia Law school. Later he began the practice of law with James H. Hudson under the firm name of Hudson & Straus. Afterward the firm became Stern, Straus & Thompson.

Mr. Straus was appointed minister to Turkey in 1887 by President Cleveland. His mission to that country was remarkably successful. In 1889 he returned to America. In 1897 he was reappointed to the office of minister to Turkey by President McKinley, which office he retained for three years. In 1902 President Roosevelt appointed him to fill the vacancy in the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague caused by the death of ex-President Harrison.

MRS. POTTER PALMER STUDIES ART



Mrs. Potter Palmer has returned from Paris to Berlin, where she took a thorough course of study in the picture galleries and museums. This she did by way of preparation for society functions next winter, when she will visit Chicago.

Mrs. Palmer believes that more artistic appreciation should be developed in the social life of Chicago, and with this object in view she put herself under direction of the learned Dr. Bode of Berlin. Dr. Bode, who is director of the Royal museums, is recognized as the best living authority on the old masters. His books and catalogues are of the highest value in the art world, and he is frequently consulted by such collectors as J. Pierpont Morgan, but this is the first time Dr. Bode has had a society leader for a pupil. He is loud in his praises of the artistic aptness and intelligence shown by his Chicago disciple.

Dr. Bode followed the peripatetic system—that is, he took his pupil around to the galleries and museums and in them gave object lessons on the theory of art which he is expounding. The course required several weeks.

FAMOUS MAN WHOSE PUBLIC CAREER ENDS

The closing of the Sixty-second congress was also the closing, for the present, at least, of the political careers of many notable men—men who have contributed much to the pages of history of the nation and who have achieved fame by the conspicuous parts they have played in the enactment of legislation, and their contributions to political oratory.

Probably the most notable, without disparagement to the fame of others, is Joseph W. Bailey of Texas. Senator Bailey has been in congress for over twenty years, being first elected to the Fifty-second congress and at the age of twenty-six. He immediately attracted attention; first by the eloquence of his speeches and second by his tenacity of purpose and his keen insight to affairs of public interest and his ability to take care of himself in the fierce debates that characterized the house of representatives twenty years ago.

In what was probably his first speech in the house Senator Bailey proceeded to make an attack upon the rules of that body. He succeeded in drawing attention to himself, and while not so designated, he was as a matter of fact the first insurgent. He received no support in his contention either from his own party or the Republicans, but what, in those days, were considered the idle vaporings of an exceedingly eloquent schoolboy who had broken into congress, have since turned out to be the opinion of eminent statesmen prominent in the affairs of the nation, and Bailey's views on the rules expressed twelve years ago have practically been adopted by the house of representatives.

BACKACHE NOT A DISEASE

But a Symptom, a Danger Signal Which Every Woman Should Heed.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Read about Mrs. Woodall's experience.

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Rubber Atrocities.

Speaking of rubber atrocitiies, an automobile-owning friend of ours had a blow-out in a brand new tire when 12 miles from the nearest garage. Not to mention the price of tennis balls, which is 45 cents, as opposed to 35 cents ten years ago.

NOT FOR BARBER'S SHEARS

Golden Curls Too Pretty to Be Severed, Declared Chivalrous Knight of the Razor.

Occupants of the barber chairs and the men who sat in line waiting for the call "Next" wondered at the presence of a pretty little girl of five who romped about the shop, and to whose golden curls, each man said to himself, poetic metaphors might be applied without being ridiculous.

She skipped from chair to chair, visiting each barber and said "good-by" to all when she left. Every razor, every brush or pair of shears in the shop was stopped long enough for the owner to say "Good-by, Pauline; come back again."

"Is that your little girl?" the occupant of the third chair asked of the barber.

"No; she's just a little friend. Her mother sent her here to get her hai cut."

"Why, it don't look as if it had been cut. It falls all over her shoulders. It can't have been cut in a year."

"That's just it. That's why we're friends. I wouldn't cut it. I sent her back to her mother with a note. I said if they wanted to spoil anything as pretty as that they'd have to go to another shop, and that was all there was to it.

"You see, it wsa like this. Pauline played out in the yard one day and got her hair all full of sticks and things and all tangled up. It's a lot of trouble to keep a head like that in shape, and when her mother came to comb it out she got disgusted and quit. The first we ever saw of Pauline she came into the shop crying and carrying a note. Well, do you know, I didn't have the heart to do it. There wasn't anybody in the shop that would do it. We just combed it out and sent her back with a note saying that if it was cut it wouldn't be at our shop. By the time Pauline got home her mother had got into a good humor and her father had come home. Her father nearly had a fit. He came over here and set 'em up to cigars. He said if his wife ever wrote any note like that again or any fool barber paid any attention to it somebody would sure get trimmed. Whenever Pauline's downtown she drops in for a visit. We're great friends."—Kansas City Journal.

Good Whaling in the Pacific.

Five hundred whales thus far in the season, thirteen of them sperm whales, is the wonderful record made since the beginning of the season, according to Captain Shadforth of the steamer Grey, tender for the Canadian Northern Pacific Fisheries company, which maintains a number of whaling stations along the coast of British Columbia.

In addition to the 500 males caught at the three stations there are many hundreds which have been caught along the coast by other companies and by American and Norwegian concerns in Alaska waters. It is believed that before the season is over at least 2,000 whales will have been caught on the north Pacific coast.

The huge number of mammals caught in such a short period is a direct contrast to the old methods of whaling, when it would have taken years for a big fleet of sailing vessels to have caught a similar number of whales by the old hand harpoon.—Vancouver Sun.

Funeral as Festival.

A shining example of communal judgment of almost indescribable stupidity may be found, Louis Viereck, the special correspondent of the International, in the August International, in the interesting city of Strassfurt, famous for its mineral wealth. The estimable mayor of Stassfurt recently conceived the ingenious idea of levying a tax on the dead of the community. According to the latest decree issued by his honor a funeral is to be considered an amusement and taxed as such. The widow of a citizen, applying for a funeral permit, received the following document: "Five marks. Permit to arrange a festival. Herewith permission is granted to the Widow Liedke of this city to hold a funeral parade with music on the 5th inst., the procession to march through the Wachtel, Rosmarin, Prinzen, Brucken, Stein, Fursten and Hacklinger streets to the outskirts of the town."

Has Kept Snow Long.

W. R. Haun, a farmer living near here, still has some of the snow that fell during the famous storm of January 26. On that day a drift about 12 feet high formed near Mr. Haun's house. He covered the drift with several loads of straw and it was not long until the big drift had turned to ice. Several church and school socials have been furnished with ice cream frozen from ice from the big drift and the element of novelty attached to the affair has made them successful from a financial standpoint. —Larned Correspondence Topeka Capital.

Lack of Tact.

"Why did you jilt Percy?"

"He is lacking in tact."

"Why, I thought he always said nice things?"

"He does, but not always the right things. He was protesting his love yesterday when he passed an old woman. I saw my cue and said:

"'Will you love me when I get old and look like that woman?'

"'Of course I will, darling!' he cried.

"So I dismissed him. The idea of his consenting to think that I could ever get to look like that horrid old thing!"

Women are so peculiar.

ICELAND, PARADISE OF SPORTSMEN

HOT SPRINGS NEAR REYKJAVIK

It is probably difficult for the average tourist, health seeker or sportsman to realize that within four days Reykjavik, the capital of Iceland, can be reached from Leith.

Yet such is the case, and perhaps it may be more surprising to learn that during the summer months the climate is mild and equable, although the extreme northern part of the country is north of the arctic circle says a writer in the Dundee Courier.

Last year I spent four months in this historical and romantic island, the inhabitants of which still keep to their ancient customs in language, dress and government.

The latter, although nominally Danish, as the king of Denamrk has the veto, have, since 1903, had their own minister, who, under the direction of a parliament which meets every two years, looks after the affairs of the country. The crown has not yet once exercised the right to dismiss or amend any of the bills passed by the althing since the practically home rule bill of 1903 was passed.

During my visit the one-hundredth anniversary of the birth of Jon Sigurdsson, the great patriot who established free trade with all nations in 1854, was held, and the opportunity taken to open the new university. Former students had to study at Copenhagen or other recognized universities, but now they can take their degree in law, medicine or divinity at Reykjavik.

The opening was very impressive and picturesque, the whole town and countryside turning out in gala attire, many coming from villages or lonely farms forty to fifty miles distant on their strong little ponies, which are almost the only means of traveling, as there are no railways in the country. A few had little carts decorated with shrubs and artificial flowers. After the ceremony, which took place in the parliament house (the university proper is in the parliament house, but there are several classrooms in various parts of the town), the mayor made a short speech, after which the band struck up the Icelandic national anthem, a very weird and doleful tune.

Reykjavik an Up to Date Capital.

A procession was then formed, headed by the band playing the Danish national anthem, followed by the foreign consuls, who were all in uniforms, the town and county councilors, the decorated cars and little girls and boys (the former all dressed in white) carrying the national flag came in the rear. The procession then proceeded to the cemetery, where a massive laurel wreath was placed on Sigurdsson's grave, which is marked by a handsome monument.

The capital itself is modern and up to date. While I was there a Danish theatrical company performed in the little theater, and an excellent cinematograph entertainment was held every night, where one might see everything from the coronation procession to the Grand National.

One of the two large and comfortable hotels boasts of excellent music in the resttaurant every evening, both summer and winter.

The althing or parliament consists of forty members, who represent the 70,000 inhabitants on the island, of which 11,000 reside in Reykjavik.

It is not generally known that Iceland and not Britain is the mother of parliaments. In 929 a representative parliament was constituted, and its first meeting was held at Thingvellir, a great sunken plane between two lava rifts, with Thingvalla lake before it and the gigantic Broadshield mountain looking down upon it.

Thingvellir, which is thirty-five miles distant from Reykjavik, has a weird and indescribable beauty and fascination of its own. There are many rifts and fissures in the lava covered plains, which make it dangerous for strangers to roam without a guide. Many of these rifts in the lava rock are almost hidden by the undergrowth and an unwary step might precipitate one forty feet into ice cold water of an unknown depth.

Quite close to the inn and the parsonage is the largest rift. In the center of this is the Rock of Laws, which is almost an island, where nearly 1,000 years ago laws were made and judgments passed. Further south a detached rock is known as the bloodstone, where for certain offenses the backs of criminals were broken and the bodies were thrown into the deep transparent water, which rises from some subterranean source and runs from the rift underground toward the lake.

The ruins of the booths where the members of the thing, or parliament, and where at times long ago the heroes of the Sagas dwelt, are still visible.

Iceland an Anglers' Paradise.

The Thingvalla lake teems with trout and char, as do almost all the lakes and rivers in Iceland. The rivers mostly belong to farmers who own their own land and who charge from 1 to 2 kroner (1 kroner is equal to about 25 cents) a day per rod. Trout of from one to five pounds are plentiful and it is a rare occasion indeed when one does not return with a full basket.

There are a number of salmon rivers, the best of which is the Laxas, near Reykjavik, which is let to an Englishman, but excellent sport can be got in remoter districts at a moderate charge.

In the season excellent shooting can be obtained. No license is required and the farmers generally give permission to shoot over their land. Ptarmigan, snipe, whimbrel, plover, ducks and wild swan abound.

Among the trips which can be taken from Reykjavik are Thingvellir and Hekla, the latter about 5,000 feet above sea level, which is the highest volcanic mountain in Iceland, and as late as 1878 was in eruption and did a great deal of damage to the surrounding farms. Fortunately, no lives were lost. It commenced on September 2 and lasted over four months, the ashes actually being carried as far as Shetland.

Excellent accommodation can be had at the Parsonage, Fellsmull. It is usual, however, to take several pack ponies, as well as riding ponies, to carry tents and other equipment to camp out. If the Great geyser is included the trip will last at least a week.

There is an inn near the geyser where a bed can be obtained and soap purchased. Strange to say, the Great geyser will sometimes not condescend to spout unless he receives from 20 to 60 pounds of soap, and then he may remain sulky for a full week or even longer, but on occasions he may spurt several times a day. Why the soap affects him is unknown, and likely will remain unknown for all time coming.

On the main country roads caravans of pack ponies from five to twelve in number are frequently met with. The ponies are tied head to tail; that is the leader will have a rope attached to his tail which is fastened to the bridle of the following pony, and so on; and sometimes cows and goats are included.

Punctuality is not a strong point with the Icelanders, a few hours here or there making no difference in keeping appointments. Taking them all round, however, they are a good natured and extremely intelligent lot, and certainly put the average Britisher to shame in their knowledge of languages, nearly all speaking Danish and English, as well as their own. The recognized guides are highly educated and cultured men, who can be relied upon to provide good ponies, riding saddles and pack saddles.

Iceland has no trees with the exception of two or three small woods on the east coast. The government has been endeavoring to cultivate pines and firs near Reykjavik, but hitherto have met with but little success.

In Reykjavik there is a large and handsome museum, which from an antiquarian point of view is of immense interest. Among its collections are many manuscripts belonging to the old Saga writers. Under the same roof is a natural history collection embracing specimens of all the animals, birds and fish in Iceland. There is also a splendid library and a good reading room with some thousands of books of reference in Icelandic English, German and French.

To Amuse Children.

Children who must be amused on bad days will find a "ring toss" game a delight; it can be purchased for 50 cents with four rings and a red stick for outdoor use, or a red wooden stand so that the game can be played indoors on rainy days; it is a good game for children of almost any age, for the older ones always find much fun in it, and it teaches the littler ones to aim well and throw correctly.

The Coughs of Children

They may not cough today, but what about tomorrow? Better be prepared for it when it comes. Ask your doctor about keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. Then when the hard cold or cough first appears you have a doctor's medicine at hand. This cough medicine is especially good for children. No anodynes. No alcohol.

Many a child is called dull and stupid when the whole trouble is due to a lazy liver. We firmly believe your own doctor will tell you that an occasional dose of Ayer's Pills, sugar-coated, will do such children a great deal of good. Ask him.

THE COLORADO, THE NILE, AND THE SUSQUEHANNA.

Colorado River, which drains an area of some 300,000 square miles, is often called the Nile of America, and like the Nile it is subject to an annual summer rise which comes at the time the water is most needed for irrigation. In Water Supply Paper 289 of the United States Geological Survey, an interesting comparison is made of this great southwestern river with the Egyptian Nile and with the Susquehanna. The Nile is similar in type to the Colorado; the Susquehanna shows the difference in flow between arid and humid regions. In the comparison a normal year, based on a 10-year record for Colorado and Susquehanna rivers and such data as could be found in regard to the Nile, have been used. The Colorado has been taken as the standard of comparison.

The Nile has 5.7 times the drainage area, and the Susquehanna about one-eighth the area of the Colorado. The rainfall in the Nile basin is 3.8 times greater; that in the Susquehanna basin is 4.5 times greater. The run-off per square mile from the Nile basin is 1.9 times greater; that from the Susquehanna basin is 37 times greater. The discharge of the Nile is 10.8 times greater than that of the Colorado; that of the Susquehanna is 4.5 times greater.

The annual maximum flow of the Colorado varies from 50,000 to 150,000 second-feet and occurs in May, June, or July; for the Nile it is about 353,000 second-feet and occurs about the first of September; for the Susquehanna it is from 150,000 to 550,000 second-feet and occurs during March, April, or May.

The annual minimum flow of the Colorado varies from 2,500 to 5,000 second-feet and occurs during January or February; that of the Nile is about 14,500 second-feet and occurs about the end of May; for the Susquehanna it is from 2,200 to 11,00 second-feet and occurs in September or October.

The mean flow of the Colorado for the period 1894 to 1903 was 10,700 second-feet. The mean flow for the period 1904 to 1910, however, was 25,400 second-feet; for the Nile it is about 115,800 second-feet; for the Susquehanna it is about 41,000 second-feet.

WHO can pick the winner? Never before has there been such a political tangle and such political individuality in voting. The great public is voting for principles and men, not parties now-a-days. Since 1880, there have been 11 states that have run democratic at every presidential election and 7 states republican. Three states, Idaho, Missouri and Montana formerly democratic have voted republican at the past two presidential elections while Colorado, Nebraska and Nevada voted democratic four years ago. What will all these states do next Tuesday? There is much estimating and straw-voting but no one can tell at this time as so little party line up is manifest. The total number of electoral votes is 531, 266 being necessary to elect. Everybody has a favorite in the race and is doing all he or she can to aid that favorite. May the best man for the country win.

THE newest thing in the way of state division is the secession of San Diego and Imperial counties to join with the state of Arizona. It is said that Arizona favors it. San Diego would be made the new capital of Arizona and made the first city of that state instead of the last city in the state of California. By annexation Arizona would have a seaport which would help her very much in many ways.—Palo Alto Citizen.

MOUNTAIN VIEW is famous for many things and now it wants credit for raising two of the largest steers ever grown in this valley. They attracted much attention as they were driven along the streets. These steers weighed exactly one ton each. There is not a pound difference in weight. They are six years old and were born and raised in the foothills above Mountain View.—Palo Alto Citizen.

AS far as this county is concerned, we will be well represented in the state and national law making bodies, as it is a safe prophesy that Hon. E. A. Hayes will be returned to Congress, and L. D. Bohnett and Frank Benson will represent this section at Sacramento. If the voters are wise the above results will follow. A word to the wise.

THERE'S a "nigger in the fence." Vote to defeat the free text book amendment, which, if carried, will create a political school board with a big chance for graft. Don't place the temptation before anyone.

ADVICES from Sacramento, state that it will be useless to write in the names of the Taft electors on the ballot election day, as these votes will not be counted. Vote for yourself, 'twill count just as much and make you feel the high cost of living less.

6th Amendment

You help yourself, your state and San Francisco by voting for the 6TH Amendment on the Ballot.

A Vote for the 6TH Amendment on Ballot means a Greater San Francisco. A Greater California economically, and richer people individually.

Look and vote for the 6TH Amendment on your ballot. It means a larger San Francisco, a richer state, and more prosperous people.

You can help make San Francisco the 4th largest city in America and the most prosperous state by voting for the 6TH Amendment on your ballot.

The larger San Francisco becomes and the more it is recognized the greater will be the demand for the state's labor and products. Vote for the 6TH Amendment on the Ballot.

San Francisco is the only city in state barred from growing by the present constitution. Vote for the consolidation amendment and give simple justice to the metropolis.

If California grows you are economically concerned. If San Francisco becomes a larger city, California and you become richer accordingly. Vote for the 6TH Amendment on the Ballot.

Vote for the 6TH Amendment on the ballot. It means a Greater San Francisco, a Greater California. Anything that helps San Francisco develop makes a greater demand for your labor and products.

If San Francisco becomes a larger city there will come a larger demand for its commodities, naturally a greater demand for your services and products to be utilized. Vote for 6TH Amendment on the Ballot.

Make San Francisco the 4th largest city in the Union, the clearing house for the products of our state in touch with all the countries bordering on the north and south Pacific Ocean. You can do this by voting for the 6TH Amendment on the Ballot and thus create a greater demand for California products—your products.

A vote for Amendment No. 6 for the consolidation of cities is a vote for the prosperity of the state.—Advertisement.

A Genuine Service.

"I believe," says an old subscriber, "that every time The Youth's Companion enters a home it does that home a genuine service." That describes the purpose of the publishers exactly. The paper is not filled with mischievous or idle thoughts to fill an idle hour. It provides healthy pastime, recreation that builds up. It is to the minds of eager and impressionable young people what sound athletics are to their bodies.

At a cost of less than four cents a week The Youth's Companion opens the door to a company of the most distinguished men and women in America and Europe. Whether they are revealing the latest discoveries in science, or describing great industrial achievements, or telling of their wanderings in strange corners of the world, or feeding the imagination with rare stories, they are giving Companion readers the best of themselves.

Seven serials at least will be published by The Companion in 1913, and nearly 200 other complete stories, in addition to some 50 special contributions, and a treasure-box of sketches, anecdotes, expert advice as to athletic sports, ideas for handy devices round the house, and so forth—long hours of companionship with the wise, the adventurous and the entertaining. Announcement for 1913 will be sent with sample copies of the paper to any address on request.

Every new subscriber who sends $2.00 for the fifty-two weekly issues of 1913 will receive as a gift The Companion Window Transparency and Calendar for 1913, the most exquisite novelty ever offered to Companion readers; also, all the issues of The Companion for the remaining weeks of 1912, free.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE COUNTY OF SANTA CLARA, STATE OF CALIFORNIA

Order to Show Cause Why Order of Sale of Real Estate Should not be Made

In the matter of the estate of Edward Hiatt, deceased.

It appearing to the undersigned, Judge of said Court, by the petition this day presented and filed by Elwood Hiatt, the administrator of the estate of Edward Hiatt, deceased, praying for an order of sale of real estate, that it is necessary to sell the whole of real estate to pay the expenses and charges of administration of said estate.

It is therefore ordered by the undersigned, Judge of said Court, that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased, appear before the said Superior Court on Friday, the 29th day of November, A. D., 1912 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court-room of said Superior Court, at the Court House in San Jose, County of Santa Clara to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said administrator to sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased as shall be necessary.

And that a copy of this order shall be published at least four successive weeks in The Campbell Interurban Press, a newspaper printed and published in said County,

P. F. GOSBEY,
Judge.

Dated October 23, 1912.
